Consultant Community Adviser Biography

Anna Robinson

Experience

Anna gained a Secondary PGCE in English and SEN in 1999 and was a secondary teacher and Learning Mentor supporting vulnerable young people on the verge of permanent exclusion. For nine years she then taught in Pupil Referral Units.

As a Social, Emotional and Mental Health Specialist, supporting Bradford Primary, Secondary and Specialist Provisions, Anna built a wealth of experience in SEMH issues.

Anna is an NLP Practitioner and is currently training to Masters level.

Expertise

A comprehensive understanding of the SEN Code of Practice and how this can translate into inclusive provision in each school is key to Anna's expertise. She designs provision for Education, Health and Care Plans and advises and supports schools on staffing and implementation. She delivers impactful training that embeds change in teachers' teaching practice.

Anna can share schemes of work which focus upon self-regulation, emotional well-being and self-management strategies to produce successful learners.

Philosophy and Passion

Early in her career, Anna discovered a passion for the young people who were disengaged and underachieving. This has informed her career and her current work.

Focus

Supporting the child and their family is done through thorough assessment, pupil voice, meeting with families and other agencies. This increases inclusivity and reduces the likelihood of exclusion. At the heart of Anna's work is ensuring the well-being of the young person.
